Highlights of 1940 Red Sox Season

April 16 —

Lefty Grove hurls two-hit shutout against Washington.

May 20 and 21 —

Jimmy Foxx hits grand slam homers against Detroit on successive days to tie record set by Bill Dickey in 1937.

May 30 —

Lou Finney gets five hits in six trips to the plate against Yankees.

June 16 —

Pitcher Jack Wilson hits two home runs in one game against Chicago.

July 3 —

Red Sox score six runs in ninth inning, featured by home runs by Jimmie Foxx and Ted Williams, to beat Athletics, 12-11.

August 2 —

Manager Joe Cronin hits for cycle against Detroit—single, double, triple and home run.

September 10 —

Lefty Grove hurls brilliant 13-inning victory over Detroit, besting Buck Newsom and Al Benton.

September 24 —

Ted Williams, Capt. Jimmie Foxx and Manager Joe Cronin clout successive home runs off Athletic pitchers, equalling major league record. Total bases for Sox sluggers, 52.

September 27 —

Red Sox score 24 runs in game against Washington, piling up 10 runs in fourth inning.

Season Marks

Red Sox led American League for fifty-seven days of season.

Tied Detroit for lead in club batting with mark of .286.

Shattered own mark for home runs in season with 145.

Infield of Foxx, Doerr, Cronin and Tabor set some sort of record with 103 homers.

Broke league record for most long hits in one game, against Athletics Sept. 24, with 14 extra base blows, including five doubles, three triples and six homers. In same game, Sox broke major league record for most extra bases on long hits by one club in a game with 29 — five on two-baggers, six on three baggers and 18 on home runs.

Manager Joe Cronin, Jim Tabor and Bobby Doerr set personal home run records, all going over 20 for first time in careers. Cronin led the trio with 24, Doerr had 22 and Tabor had 21.

Ted Williams, third in final batting standings with a mark of .344, took total base honors with 384, a gain of 40 over his record of 1939. Williams also scored the most runs, 134.

Dominic Di Maggio, regarded by many as outstanding rookie of year, tied league record for most runs scored in one game — five against Washington, Sept. 27. Di Maggio, playing in only 94 games, led American League outfielders in assists with 16 and took part in five double plays.

Frank Pytlak, new Boston catcher, set record of 571 consecutive chances accepted without an error as catcher for Cleveland.

Dominic Ryba, purchased from Rochester of the International League, set several marks in that circuit. Ryba had the most victories, 24; pitched the most innings, 272; allowed the most hits, 272, and hurled the most complete games, 25.

Norman Brown, pitcher brought up from Rocky Mount, ran up a mark of 33 consecutive scoreless innings against Piedmont League opposition.
